

CANDIDATES WORK HARD FOR VOTES

Mann, Tucker, Catlett and Williams Out on the Stump Yesterday.

THEY GIVE CLERKS HOLIDAY

Little Doing at Headquarters, but Strenuous Times Are Looked for Later.

Painful dullness marked the opening of the week in State politics, and there was nothing of public interest around the headquarters of any of the candidates.

Indeed, the candidates were all out of the city, and their managers decided to give the clerks and stenographers a holiday, inasmuch as it was Easter Monday. The headquarters of Judge Mann were absolutely closed, and this was practically true at Mr. Tucker's establishment, though one of his secretaries was on guard, and was getting of some important mail in the afternoon. Mr. Catlett, however, though he had let off nearly all his clerks for the day.

Candidates Scattered.

The candidates for Governor and Attorney-General were widely scattered yesterday, and though their respective headquarters here may not have shown signs of great activity, they were on patrol for votes. Judge Mann spoke at Accomac C. H. yesterday, and will spend the rest of the week in campaigning in the Eastern Shore. Mr. Tucker appeared at Heathsville, the county seat of Northumberland county, and he will probably spend the next several days in the Northern Neck.

Judge Williams spoke at Leesburg, and Col. Catlett spent the day at Annapolis, attending Circuit Court, and shaking hands with his old friends and constituents in the Fourth District.

So far as the campaign is concerned, Governor Elyson nor his competitor, Col. Catton, was out on the stump yesterday, and it looks as if they are not inclined to press their campaign with the same vigor which is marking the other two.

Will Be Lively Yet.

Some real life is promised in the gubernatorial struggle within the next few weeks. It may not come in the nature of joint debates, but it is coming, unless all present signs fail.

It may as well be said, too, that whatever of strenuousness may be injected will come from Mr. Tucker rather than the Mann side.

Tucker may not throw any bombs, but he has told some of his close personal and political friends that he has much ammunition left in his magazine, and that from time to time he intends to let the people know he is in the race.

No matter what, both the gubernatorial candidates have been firing in the air up to this time. It may be stated upon authority that Judge Mann is not seeking a combative struggle. He told a representative of The Times-Dispatch a few days ago that he saw no reason for any abuse of his competitor, and that he would prefer to go through the present battle in the same pleasant manner which he had characterized the one four years ago, when he had not found it necessary to say a single unkind word of either of his opponents.

Judge Mann for Peace.

Judge Mann, in other words, appears to be on good terms with himself and all the world, and is willing for a quiet and peaceful canvass. Judging from his pleasant attitude, he is "beside the still waters" to use an expression of the Senator E. W. Catmack, of Tennessee, and he sees no necessity for ruffling the bosom of the deep.

No one is known to be in a position to say that there will be any early challenge for joint debates, though there is a deep-seated desire on the part of the voters for hand-to-hand and face-to-face conflict, and it is not finally come the general impression seems to be that Mr. Tucker will be the challenger.

It has been suggested by friends of both the candidates that if there is to be a series of joint debates, Richmond would be the logical place for the opening engagement. If the two candidates do not care to issue a challenge, there is no objection.

TO BUILD BOULEVARD

County Will Construct Fine Thoroughfare on Cary Street Road.

While no definite action has yet been taken, the board of supervisors of the county has discussed and substantially agreed upon the construction of a boulevard on Cary Street Road.

Over on the Cary Street Road for two and a half miles outside of the city limits, State aid, with the addition of an amount from the county levy and some money in private subscriptions, will be used to defray the expenses, which will be about $10,000. The work will be directly under the direction of Supervisor Walter Z. Grant, of Tuckahoe District.

Within the next few days the State Highway Commission will be asked to make a survey of the road and place preliminary estimates in the hands of the board of supervisors. Last year the county constructed the extension of Chamberlayne Avenue, which cost $8,000, and to which the county was entitled to State aid. Heretofore will now be reimbursed to the amount of $4,000 for this work, and the amount will be used on the proposed new road. Citizens living along the Cary Street Road have expressed themselves as willing to give liberally to the work. The move is received with great delight by the automobilists, who have experienced many troubles on the Cary Street Road.

Not Caught Yet.

Though diligent search has been made for him, the negro who attacked a girl living on Oregon Hill Sunday night has not yet been captured.
